It is good that most of us never really know what other people think of us.

IN MERORIAM

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of our dear son and brother James Thurman Gibson who passed away sixteen years ago today, July 17, 1944.

They say that time heals all sorrow,
And helps us to forget,
But time so far has only proved
How much we miss you yet.

A face that is always before us,
A voice we cannot forget;
Your smile will last forever,
In memory we see you yet.

God gave us strength to fight it,
And courage to face the blow.
But what it means to lose you,
No one will ever know.

—Your loving Mom, Dad, and Brothers.
(1tp)

IN MEMORIAM
HARRIS: In sweet memory of our husband and father, Robert Lee Harris, who passed away six years ago, July 11, 1954.

We miss you no less as the time passes on,
Than we did on the day of your going.
For absence can never close the door of our heart,
And the lamp of our love is still glowing.

—Sadly missed by his wife and Children.
Mrs. Ruby H. Harris.
(1tc)

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of our dear husband, W. Ray Baldwin, who departed this life 9 years ago, July 13, 1951.
Those whom we love go out of sight, but never out of mind;
They are cherished in the hearts of those they leave behind.
Your kind and guiding hand, so gentle, yet so strong;
Your heart full of love, searching out to right the wrong;
Your words of comfort, always ready, ever true;
These are but a few memories, dear husband, of you.

—Sadly missed by his Wife, Children and Grandchildren, Sisters and Brothers.

Abused Cigarette Was Once Held As Sacred Object

WASHINGTON—The now frequently condemned cigarettes were once sacred objects among Indian tribes of the Southwest.

They were placed by priests in caves as votive offerings. Thousands have been found in cave shrines throughout Arizona.

The once sacred nature of the cigarette—none of the present popular brands of radio advertising, of course—is established by the findings of several archeologists during the past half century, according to the Smithsonian Institution's Bureau of American Ethnology.

Practice of making cane cigarettes survived up to quite recently among the Pima Indians of Arizona. From a reed growing along the banks of the Rio Gila they made a smoking tube the length of the first two joints of the index finger. Around the middle of this was tied a miniature belt woven from cotton and agave fiber, with fringed ends.

These tubes were regarded as male or female, according to certain marks placed on them. Before departure of a war party these tubes were filled with tobacco and smoked toward the four points of the compass, to the tribal fetishes, and to all the objects that were to be used in the campaign. Each warrior smoked his own cigarette.

At the close of the ceremony the tubes were deposited in shrines dedicated to the war god These generally were in caves. Hundreds of these tubes were found in fireplaces during excavation of the great Indian "apartment house" at Casa Grande, Arizona, in 1907. The surfaces were charred but the objects still were distinguishable. Large numbers of similar tubes have been found in caves through the Gila and Salt River Valleys.

New World Had Lost 'Golden' Age

WASHINGTON—There probably was a lost "golden age" in aboriginal New World culture. Art in aboriginal America may have reached its heights in the jade carvings of Mexico and Central America. This was an art which, by and large, has remained unknown to the rest of the world. The creations achieved by the Indian carvers rival and surpass those found elsewhere in the world.

Such is the conclusion of the late Dr. William Foshag, former Smithsonian Institution curator of geology, in a report on the mineralogy of jade articles recovered from Guatemalan archeological sites.

The artistry displayed in the Guatemalan jade figures, says Dr. Foshag, "presupposes a long and ancient artistic development during a civilization or culture of which we know very little. When the missing chapters in the history of Central American cultures are eventually revealed it will more than likely be found that the development of the art of jade carving will not only parallel that of China but be essentially contemporaneous with it."

Proper Diet Helps Teeth Resist Decay

CHICAGO—The best preventive for tooth decay is the development of teeth with a "high resistance" to decay, according to the American Medical Association Council on Foods and Nutrition.

The child's diet during the formation period should consist of a "generous selection of foods from all the basic food categories." They should be carefully cooked to preserve the original nutrient values.

An ample supply of vitamin D (obtained mainly from vitamin D fortified milk and sunshine) should be provided daily.

A highly desirable factor in overall diet planning for the development of caries-resistance is the growing availability of fluoridated water supplies. Small amounts of fluorine help prevent tooth decay.

After the teeth are fully formed and have erupted in the mouth, the same attention must be paid to the diet. In addition, the eating of sticky, high-carbohydrate foods that adhere to the teeth should be restricted.

Fire Prevention Week Scores Hit In Ankara

NEW YORK—The U. S. Air Force in Europe reported that officials of the Turkish Government encouraged the observation of Fire Prevention Week in Ankara, last October. It was the first observance ever held there and was so successful that Lieutenant Governor Basprt Ozpinar is planning to introduce a bill in the Turkish Grand National Assembly which will create a Turkish Fire Prevention Week, coinciding with the American campaign.

The Ankara observance was highlighted by a fire-fighting demonstration.

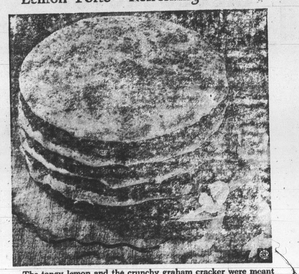
Lemon Torte—Refreshing Dessert



The tangy lemon and the crunchy graham cracker were meant for each other. And a delicate cake, which includes graham crackers and nuts in the batter and is frosted with a new fluffy lemon frosting, is simple to make on a summer day.

A frosting mix quickly whips into a delicate, airy, pale yellow fluff which spreads easily for a professional decorating look. Your torte is lovely to look at and delightful to eat.

Lemon Graham Torte

3 eggs, separated
1 cup brown sugar (packed)
⅔ cup sifted enriched flour
½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
2 cups finely crushed graham crackers (about 24)
1 cup milk
½ cup butter
1 tsp. vanilla
½ cup finely chopped nuts
1 pkg. Lemon Fluff Frosting Mix

Heat oven to 350° (mod.). Grease and flour two 8 or 9" round layer pans. Beat egg whites in small mixer bowl until frothy. Gradually beat in half of the brown sugar and continue beating until very firm. Set aside. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together into large mixer bowl. Stir graham cracker crumbs and remaining brown sugar into flour mixture. Add half of milk, butter and vanilla. Blend ingredients well. Beat 1 min., med. speed on mixer or 100 strokes by hand. Scrape sides and bottom of bowl constantly. Batter will be very thick. Add rest of milk and egg yolks. Blend well and beat 1 min. more, scraping sides of bowl often. Fold in nuts and meringue. Pour into prepared pans. Bake 30 to 40 min., until toothpick stuck into center of cake comes out clean and cake begins to leave sides of pans. Cool 10 min. before removing from pan. Handle cake gently as it is delicate and tender.

When completely cool, split each layer in half. Prepare frosting mix as directed on pkg. Spread between layers and on top of cake. Sprinkle top and sides of cake with graham cracker crumbs. The cracker crumbs will stick to frosting and make an attractive garnish.
